AXION OWNER PROPOSAL

AXION can be more than a tax website.

It can be a premium client system.

Built from the actual live product screens.

Designed to show how AXION can increase trust, reduce cleanup time, and support higher-value tax work.

Prepared as a business proposal for AXION leadership.

THE OPPORTUNITY

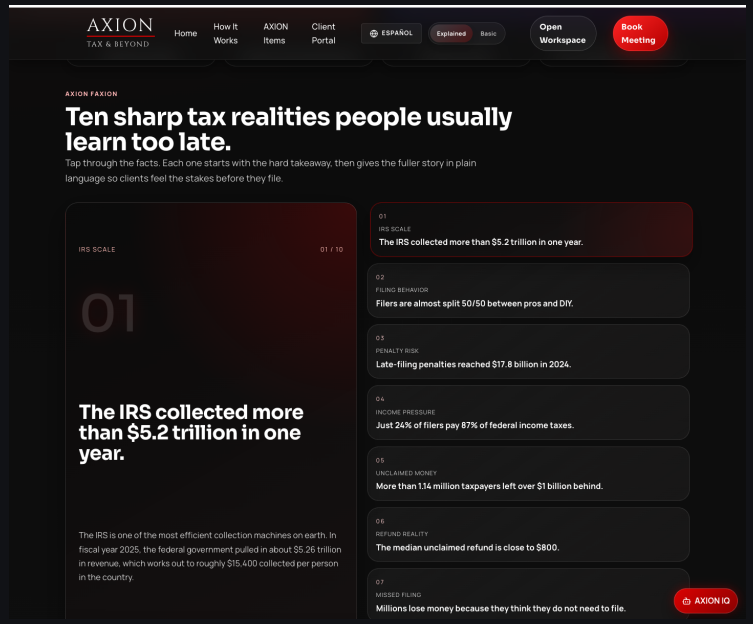

Most firms still lose time before the meeting even starts.

- Clients arrive missing documents, unsure where files belong, and unclear on tax terms.
- Preparers burn high-value time on intake cleanup instead of strategy, judgment, and advisory work.
- AXION moves that clarity earlier by combining a premium brand, a guided prep flow, and bilingual support.

PUBLIC EXPERIENCE

The site already sells trust before the client signs in.

- Homepage positioning feels premium and modern instead of generic tax-season marketing.
- AXION Items now previews value publicly while keeping the real working tools exclusive to clients.
- That structure increases perceived value and gives visitors a reason to open a workspace.

PORTAL WORKFLOW

The portal is where AXION starts creating operational leverage.

- One workspace for booking, uploading, preparation, and client updates.
- This reduces friction for first-time clients and keeps the firm in control of intake quality.
- The experience already looks closer to a premium client dashboard than a standard tax intake page.

PREPARATION QUALITY

Cleaner document intake means better meetings and fewer delays.

- The document lanes are simple enough for a normal client to understand: jobs, business, and personal information.
- This alone can cut down follow-up emails, duplicate uploads, and last-minute missing forms.
- A cleaner packet means the meeting can move faster into strategy, corrections, and higher-value advisory work.

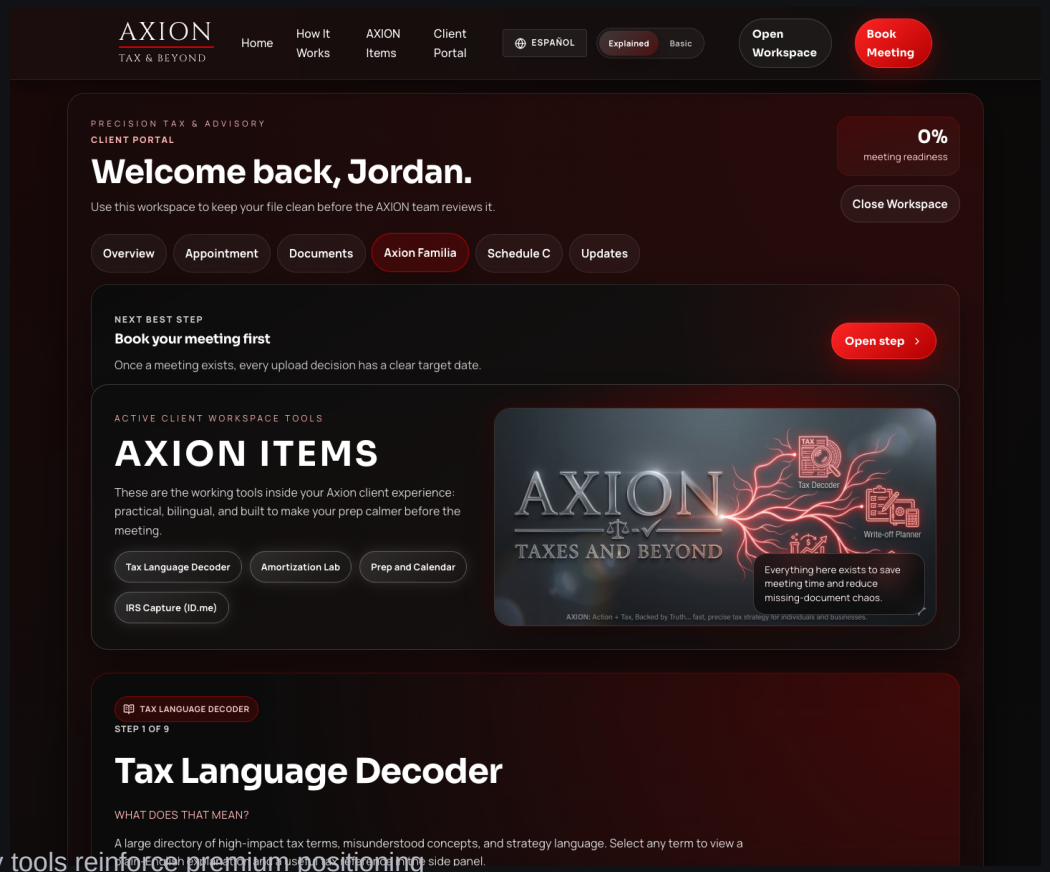

Dedicated upload lanes reduce terminology overload

DIFFERENTIATION

Axion Familia tools make the service feel premium, not commodity.

- The language decoder, amortization lab, reserve planner, and IRS capture workflow make AXION feel more useful than a normal tax office site.
- These tools support real client behavior: finding missing forms, learning what terms mean, and arriving better prepared.
- This is where brand perception shifts from 'tax preparer' to 'high-value advisory experience.'

Client-only tools reinforce premium positioning

FINANCIAL CASE

Even modest time savings create meaningful upside.

Estimated prep time AXION can save per cl

200 clients
Season scenario for a growing tax practice

500 clients
Season scenario for a scaled practice

- At 200 clients, 20-30 minutes saved each becomes roughly 66-100 hours recovered.
- At 500 clients, the same lift becomes roughly 166-250 hours recovered.
- At $150-$300 per hour of professional value, that is roughly $9,900-$75,000 in recovered capacity.
- That does not include better conversion, stronger retention, or a higher-end client perception.

What AXION is buying back

- prep hours
- review capacity
- client confidence
- premium positioning
- room for strategy

ROLLOUT

The path to production is measured in days and weeks, not quarters.

Phase 1: Production ready

Days

- final polish and QA
- tighten wording and flow
- deploy stable live version

Phase 2: Revenue leverage

1-3 weeks

- optimize lead-to-portal flow
- refine notifications and intake guidance
- expand public utility tools like unclaimed funds search

Phase 3: Premium differentiation

1-2 months

- deeper advisory tools
- behavior analytics and funnel data
- stronger premium positioning for higher-value engagements

BOTTOM LINE

AXION already has the structure of a stronger firm.

- It can act as a premium digital front door.
- It can reduce prep chaos before appointments.
- It can free up professional time for better tax work.
- It can help AXION compete like a modern advisory brand instead of a standard prep office.
